Our Ohio: Exploring Our Heritage Series - This program focuses on Arrowhead Elementary school in Copley, Ohio. The Nature Zone project provides students with the opportunity to experience nature and how it relates to science, math and social studies. Students learn how to thin out plants and how to transplant them. At Arrowhead School, they have transformed their backyard into a wildlife habitat and exciting outdoor classroom. Through the Nature Zone, children are provided with an extensive first hand environmental education, giving them a greater understanding, appreciation and respect for nature. The Nature Zone is used to enhance all aspects of our school curriculum. It provides students with the opportunity to work together cooperatively, learn about pride of ownership and share in stewardship of their own very special project. Seasonal events provide students and parents opportunities for service and fun. The Nature Zone gives students, teachers and the community healthy surroundings in which to learn, relax and play. This project also demonstrates clearly how a group of committed individuals can work together to improve the environment.

Our Ohio: Exploring Our Heritage Series - Scott Hagan didnt know what he was getting into on the fateful day he painted an Ohio State Buckeye design onto a barn. Hagans barn paintings began as a fun project, but they have become an Ohio staple. This love of quilting and its cultural relevance through the generations has led to a new type of handmade quilt, this time created with paint rather than fabric and thread. Quilt patterns are appearing on rural barns throughout southern Ohio.

Our Ohio Series - Bicentennial Barn Painter - To celebrate the county's bicentennial, a group of community members employed the skills of a local folk artist to paint quilt squares on 51 local barns. The really interesting part of the story is that the artist is a migrant worker from Mexico who has become an adopted member of the community. Ripley, Ohio: Freedom's Landing - Our Ohio takes an in-depth look at the Rankin House and Ripley, Ohio. Discover the places where the slaves hid and follow along as a tour guide takes viewers through this historic landmark. Migrant Workers - Photographer Gary Harwood spent four years documenting the migrant workers who live and work in Hartville, Ohio. Writer David Hassler put words to the project: "Growing Season: The Life of a Migrant Community," published by Kent State University Press. We talk with Harwood and Hassler to gain a better insight into the people who help to bring farm food to our dinner tables. Doc Sanders: Animal Super Senses Horses have an incredible 350-degree field of vision. Cows can recognize smells over a mile away. Doc Sanders provides a glimpse into the world of Animal Super Senses. The Animals section of the Web site has many more articles.

Our Ohio Series - Black Creek Bistro: Father and son owners of Columbus' Black Creek Bistro are farmers. The vast majority of their supplies are grown on their farm in Canal Winchester. What they can't grow themselves they try to purchase from other local producers. And like good farmers, they waste nothing—their food scraps are composted, they use their cardboard boxes to suppress weed growth and they have two trucks running on used vegetable oil. Tony Ellis: One of Ohio's many distinguished bluegrass artists, Tony Ellis and his band, the musicians of Braeburn are keeping the mountain tradition alive. Ellis is also an award-winning bluegrass composer, whose works have been used by Ken Burns in several documentaries. Doc Sanders: How to Speak Crop Farmer: Professionals in almost every industry have their own lingo, and crop farmers are no different. So if you're confused about "combines," or dumbfounded by "double-cropping," you're in luck because Doc Sanders gives us a crash course in "How to Speak Farmer."

Our Ohio Series - Boyd's Crystal Art Glass - For four generations, the Boyd family has been practicing the ancient art of glassmaking. Beginning with Zack Boyd in 1901, glass-making secrets and formulas have been handed down from father to son. Boyd Glass still manufactures collectibles the old-fashioned way, with a man and a mold and not with an automated machine. Katie Lauer: Music from the Hills of Home - Born into a musical family, Katie Laur has had a long career in bluegrass music. One of the first women in the United States to lead a bluegrass band, her music has taken her from the Kennedy Center all the way to Russia. Laur has a local radio show on WNKU called Music from the Hills of Home. Worthington Steel - Early in the 20th century, Ohio was a major producer of the nation's much-needed steel. Today, though, many of those famous foundries are no more. One survivor is Worthington Steel in Columbus. The steel made there finds its way into many agricultural machines also used in Ohio.

Our Ohio: Exploring Our Economy Series - Honor Flight - More than 1,000 World War II veterans are dying each day. Many, especially those with little means, will ever get the chance to visit the new World War II Memorial in Washington, D.C. That was not acceptable to Springfield resident and retired Air Force Captain Earl Morse. He started Honor Flight—an air force of volunteer pilots to fly these Ohio veterans to Washington. We travel to Washington with a group of Ohio WW II veterans as they finally experience the monument built for them. Jeff Gage Discovers Ohio. We see them all over the Ohio countryside. Silos are a farm icon. What are they really for? Gage learns about silos, then he spends the night in one. But it's more comfortable than you might think. The Akron Crowne Plaza Hotel was built from silos used by the Quaker Oats Company. There are still silos on many Ohio farms. You might see some at several farms to visit. Our Ohio/Profiles in Government Series - This episode of "Our Ohio: Profiles in Government" features The Public Utilities Commission of Ohio. Utility and transportation regulation began in Ohio in 1867 when the General Assembly established the Office of the Commissioner of Railroads and Telegraphs. In 1911 the Public Service Commission was established by the legislature to deal with public concerns springing up outside the limited field of railroads. At that time, jurisdiction was extended to telephone, electric, gas, and water companies, and the commission was granted the authority to value utilities and prescribe a uniform system of accounts. The commission was also allowed to approve or deny the issuance of corporate securities by public utilities and railroads. In 1913 the name was changed to the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio (PUCO). The PUCO took on comprehensive motor bus line regulatory duties in 1921 and two years later received jurisdiction over the motor transportation of property.

Native people have lived in Ohio for nearly 12,000 years thousands of years before Europeans came to the Americas. Over the years, prehistoric and late prehistoric people have left archeological records in the earth that offer clues to the past. When this evidence is pieced together by archeologists and historians, it can begin to tell a story about how these people lived. One such story is currently being told at Sunwatch Village in Dayton, Ohio.

Our Ohio: Exploring Our Heritage Series - In this Our Ohio heritage segment, the hosts visit Roscoe Village to learn how canals changed Ohio. The hosts take a ride on the Monticello III to see what the canals were like, and talk to experts on what life was like during the canal era. Farmers and merchants needed cheap, easy methods of transporting their goods. Canals had the potential to provide this transportation and open up new markets in other regions, specifically the northeast, for Ohio goods and products.
